You are here!

Hurt at work? Now what?

It can be overwhelming to know what to do when you've been hurt at work. In such times, it's good to know you have a team of support. This Medical Form 8-10 (page 2) gets your recovery off to a good start. Please provide this to your supervisor or manager as soon as possible so they are aware of your work capabilities at this time. See the steps for reporting a workplace injury, as well as your option for applying for workers' compensation benefits.

Learn more about workers' compensation and the application process at worksafenb.ca.

Haven't told your employer about your injury or illness yet? Do it as soon as you can!

Tell your employer.

Let your employer know that you've been hurt at work as soon as possible. They can help you get the help you need. They must also help protect others from getting hurt in the workplace.

Get medical attention, if needed.

Give your health care provider as much detail as possible to help them help you. Let them know you were hurt at the workplace.

Give the Medical Form 8-10 (page 2) to your employer.

This page provides valuable information about your work capabilities to help you and your employer develop next steps.

If you wish to apply for workers' compensation benefits, file an Application for Workers' Compensation Benefits.

Benefits can include medical treatment, wage replacement or both. Open the form at worksafenb.ca.

Medical information has been removed from this section in compliance with the Personal Health Information Privacy and Access Act.
