

Take Our Kids to Work™

On November 1, thousands of Grade 9 students across New Brunswick will join parents for the annual Take Our Kids to Work™ day.

This day is the ideal opportunity for parents and guardians to renew their focus on workplace health and safety.

Employers, parents and students can each prepare for the day:

Employers

Provide a safety briefing at the beginning of the day.

Encourage dialogue about health and safety. Ask questions.

Show how your business makes safety a priority.

Introduce students to your JHSC or health and safety representative.

Invite students to a safety meeting.

Host a safety talk.

Invite students on a workplace inspection.

Students

Learn about safety precautions before you go to the workplace.

Ask if you need any personal protective equipment.

Follow all company safety rules.

Ask your parent/guardian how they stay safe daily.

Ask questions. Why are certain procedures in place?

Talk about workplace safety after Take Our Kids to Work™ day. Share concerns with friends and family at school and at home.

Parents/Guardians

Talk to your children about workplace safety before Take Our Kids to Work™ day. Ensure they know the risks and are prepared.

Demonstrate safety practices while on the job. Be a good role model.

Supervise students closely during the day. Correct unsafe behaviours immediately.

Ask students if they have any safety concerns.

Talk about workplace safety after Take Our Kids to Work™ day. Keep workplace health and safety an ongoing conversation at home.
